Graduate School Overview

First Things First

You and your supervisor

Graduate School...it is all about seeking the right path and the right supervisor. He or she is likely to be the most important individual for you to succeed in your studies. This is important in order to guarantee you to work on your research smoothly and successfully either in Master or Doctoral level. Therefore, application process must begin earlier by searching a potential supervisor. It is either writing an email or do some background research which may suit with your research works.

Another major consideration, which is obviously important, is to ensure whether you get financial support for your graduate program or not. For those who are sponsored (Jungseok International Scholarship, Korean Government Scholarship (KGSP), or other sponsorships), life is going to be a little bit easier. So what is necessary is to make a contact with your potential supervisor. Please visit this URL to get to know more about the scholarship.

http://gradeng.inha.ac.kr/entrance/ent_030301.aspx

Know your department

It is important too to define your fields and types of degrees beforehand. It is such a painful experience to choose from hundreds of graduate school program available. You may also feel overwhelmed about it. Here is a list of ways that may help you to narrow your field option:

- Compare and review school graduate programs that may reflect your research interest.
- Figure out or survey current job placement rates and hot topics for research works and it should be current.
- Evaluate your financial commitment, which includes tuition fees, cost of living as well as assistance you may receive.

- Survey an academic reputation or accreditation of the program
- Make a contact with current graduate students about the program experience

You may visit this URL to access the degree program offered.

Application form

Some people often take for granted when it comes to admission application. They don't take things seriously as it will affect the selection results. All applicants must realize that they must meet all the necessary requirements and procedures. A proper reading of admission guidelines is a must. This is to ensure that you are not going to miss any important document or requirement for admission evaluation process.

You may always refer to our portal which provides complete guidelines from A to Z. Please feel free to visit this URL to get to know the details about the admission process.

Community Story

Chinese Student Community

As of 2013, the number of students from China enrolled in Inha University has increased. For this year only, there are 347 students enrolled for undergraduate programs and 164 students for master and doctoral programs. Obviously, the number of Chinese students is the largest number in Inha University's foreign community. We are not only the largest community, we are also strong, always stay united and regularly keep in touch with each other.

In order to enrich campus cultural life and tighten the friendship between students, Chinese Students Union of Inha University often organizes various activities. During the university's festival which is held every year in May, Chinese Students Union has set up a special Chinese booth and prepared delicious Chinese food. This includes lamb skewers, Shanxi wrapper and Chinese Hamburger for students to taste.

Meanwhile, in June, Chinese Students Union organized "The First Chinese Students Football Game in Incheon". A lot of students participated and enjoyed the competition. We also organized "12th Traditional Chinese Dragon Boat Festival" last June. The Chinese Student Union has ordered almost 300 delicious dumplings from the nearest Chinese restaurant, and distributed to students for free.

While in weekend or free time, we love to enjoy Korean life. We love to spend our time together at Jimjilbang (Korean Sauna) or hang out outside and eat delicious Korean food. We often eat Samgyeopsal (grilled pork) etc.

As the largest community in Inha University, we live happily here in Korea. We wish all of us will graduate successfully to chase our beautiful dreams and better future.

Laboratory Story

Telecommunication Engineering Laboratory

Telecommunication Engineering Laboratory (TEL LAB) is a state-of-the-art research facility and a part of Electronic Engineering Department. It is directed by Professor Kwak, Kyung Sup. It is such a pleasure to have a chance to introduce our lab for this issue. TEL Lab is considered as an established lab. Currently there are 20 students from different countries like Bangladesh, Pakistan, India, Nepal, China etc. Most of them are PhD students and the rest are Master students. Our research area is wireless communication technology.

always encourage us to conduct quality research works. It is worth to mention that we have published a number of publications. This includes domestic and international publications.

Research Publication in 2012:

Journal: SCI Journal 18, non – SCI 3.

Conference: Domestic 2 and International 26.

Intellectual Property: Patent Registration – Domestic Patent (9), International (1).

TEL Lab has achieved glorious performances from previous students, especially with a very good quality of research work. Most of their research works were published in high quality journals and conferences. They are all now doing great and with various works position work either in government or private sector. We are really proud of them.

We have good lab facilities and a nice lab environment to enable us to work on our research smoothly. This includes very cooperative professor, seniors and post-doctoral fellow. This is among important factor that will

For linking present and past, TEL Lab sometimes organize a trip to visit a place in Korea. We organize a lot of activities during the trip. We have so much fun.

Student Life

A Day of Inhaian

As most of the Inha Graduate students experience, waking up is definitely the hardest part of a routine day when you went to bed so late, with so many equations in your head. If you are used to delay the alarm till 20 minutes before the first class, then you must have breakfast in a hurry. For breakfast, you can have some cookies and pastries from chain bakery stores or you may prefer kimbab. Mostly, I prefer to eat pastries or Korean Waffle for breakfast. After morning class is over, my day continues with laboratory activities. Almost all graduate students spend a significant percentage of the daytime in their laboratories.

For lunch, you have plentiful options of Korean and International cuisines. If you would like to have your lunch in campus, you have two options. While one of the student dining halls is located in Student Center, another is in Building #5. If you prefer to eat out of campus, dakgalbi, bokkeumbab, rice burger, dosirak, topokki, pajeon, bibimbap are most preferred Korean dishes by international students. Also, you can find pizzas, burgers, pastas, kebabs and burritos from tasty international cuisines. As a Muslim student, I recommend other Muslim friends to get some information about food restrictions. In general, it is possible to find Halal food. After lunch break, I usually go back to my laboratory. As several hours of studying pass by, I would like to have a walk on our green campus. I feel so lucky that our campus is intimate with nature. You can take a sit on the benches by the lake or under the trees.

There are also miscellaneous sports facilities in the campus. For relaxing and stretching after work, you can play football, tennis, baseball, volleyball etc. But unfortunately, we don't have a swimming pool. As I like swimming a lot, I wish to have a swimming pool inside campus.

When it is dinner time, I prefer to cook at home.

There are many convenience stores around Inha University, and also one shopping centre. You can find whatever you need for cooking. After having dinner, you can meet friends at the backside of our university. There are so many coffee houses and bars to hang out. If it is Friday night, you can find some parties in clubs. Also, Korean style Karaoke is one of the most entertaining activities when you are out with friends. For evenings, I like to go to cinema. The closest movie theater is located in Juan station, 20 minutes away by bus.

After a busy day, I take a shower, call my parents, look for the news. Lastly, I go to bed. All in all, most probably a graduate student in Inha University lives a daily routine as I experienced. To make it worse or better is in your hands.

Student Life

More Than Just a Dormitory

I have been living in dormitories when I was studying for my undergraduate degree. And now, studying for graduate school, I find myself living again in the dormitory (INHA dormitory), the difference is, this time it is in another country.

Sometimes curious individuals ask me, are you not tired of living in the dormitory where rules are important aspect of your daily life? Where routine is inevitable? Where your common everyday activity is governed by a time table that should be strictly followed? Where curfews get into your partying hours or if you are a “lab rat” your research hours? Where meals are repeatedly served?

My answer would be, no. Contrary to all those seemingly negative questions, I find the dormitory a safe haven. I experienced some of my greatest moments in this routine controlled communal abode. I enjoy most of the activities being held in dormitories.

I always look forward to the annual open house where we can invite our friends to come and experience what life in the dormitory is. During this event, different gimmicks are presented by the dormitory residents. This year at INHA dormitory, we had a sports competition and a film showing event. The dormitory was even generous to put up booths for free flowing popcorn and eat all you can cotton candy. We also hold an annual sports day. During this day, we play games like table tennis, soccer and parlor games. Aside from these activities, the facilities being offered also make the dorm very convenient to live in.

At INHA dormitory, you can enjoy going to the gym that is located in its own premises. If you feel a snack craving at 10 in the evening, the convenient score is just a step away as it is located in the dormitory’s lobby. These are just some of the reasons why even if dormitory life is routine, we tend to enjoy the little conveniences that comes with it.

Personally, I think the most important aspect of the dormitory life is the people you meet. They make your life miserable or interesting. This is because at the end of the day, after studying and working long hours, the dormitory is the place to be.

INHA dormitory gave me a unique dormitory experience. Upon my arrival, I had mixed emotions, excited with the new adventure at hand, worried on how to blend in, anxious on how to survive without knowing the language and etc. But especially on whom my roommates are because I know that during my stay at INHA I will be living with foreigners. Needless to say, I am very lucky to have teamed up with three graduate students from different countries, one from Mongolia, China and Vietnam. My room is basically international and multicultural, each of us have different cultures. But it is just amazing that we lived harmoniously and I cannot remember a time that we were indifferent from each other. I shared with them the joys, the comic moments and struggles of being a graduate student at INHA University.

From the moment I met these ladies, I knew that I have made friends for life. They are my support group, my siblings and of course not to forget my lovely INHA dormitory family. It is amazing what a boring routine life in the dormitory can offer you.

Inha Harmony Festival

2013 INHA Harmony Festival with Foreign Students

2013 Inha Harmony Festival with Foreign Students is the theme for 2013 cross-cultural festival which is celebrated annually in the month of May. This event is organized by Graduate School and Inha Graduate Student Union to promote culture exchange and tradition between international students and local students at Inha University. This year, more than 150 students from 12 countries participated in the festival. The countries are from Korea, Cambodia, China, Turkey, Indonesia, Mongolia, Bangladesh, Vietnam, Philippines, Pakistan, Malaysia and Uzbekistan. Each country exhibited various items that represent their countries, such as pamphlet or booklet, traditional clothes and souvenirs at exhibition booths. Some of the countries introduced their unique traditional games (i.e.: Malaysia, Cambodia, Mongolia, and Uzbekistan). If a visitor gets lucky, he/she will be rewarded with small gifts. On top of it, some of them have prepared a tasty and mouthwatering pastry such as Baklava from Turkey, traditional snacks (sweetened Banana) from the Philippines, traditional Malaysian cuisine (Kuih Cik Mek Moleh, Cucur Ikan Bilis, and Dadih), Mongolia, Cambodia, Bangladesh.

China introduced one traditional game called “Diabolo”, a popular traditional game in China. The “Diabolo” is known as a juggling game, consisting of an axle and two cups or discs. The game evolved from the traditional Chinese yo-yo. This object will spun using a string attached to two hand sticks. A variety of tricks can be performed by using the “Diabolo”, such as spinning and interactions with the stick, strings and various body parts. Not only that, Deng Lijun from Cultural Management Department also performed a unique and charm of China traditional folk song called "Beautiful life".

With a well-organized choreography and glittery costumes, Indonesian students performed a dance called “Tari Saman”. with enthusiasm. “Tari Saman”, means “the dance of thousand hands.” This is one of the most popular dances in Indonesia. It originated from the Gayo ethnic group, in Gayo Lues, Indonesia. The dance is usually performed in any important occasions. The dance is characterized by its fast-paced rhythm and common harmony between dancers. On November 24, 2011 UNESCO officially recognized Aceh's traditional Saman Dance as an intangible element of world cultural heritage, which needs UNESCO's urgent protection.

 China

 Indonesia

Inha Harmony Festival

Another energetic performance was from Malaysia. They performed traditional martial arts that originated from Malaysia known as “Silat Pulut”. The “Silat Pulut” is a slow technique-infused version of a combat. It is also known as a martial art that shows the adeptness and skills in martial art combat. “Silat Pulut” is accompanied by the rhythm of “Gendang Silat” (Silat drums). Nowadays, it is only performed at wedding ceremonies in front of the newly wed to make the wedding ceremony much merrier.

 Malaysia

 Philippines

The Philippines shared the vibrant and rich culture of the indigenous peoples in the Cordillera region found in the northern part of the Philippines through a fusion dance. With their weaved costumes, they performed the dances known as ‘Patong’ and ‘Sagni’, a community dance practiced during festivities followed by a traditional chant, the ‘Uggayam’ which is sang to greet and to give thanks for the festival. Furthermore, to give a glimpse of the marriage and courtship tradition in some parts of the Philippines, they performed a ‘Salidsid’, a fast paced chasing dance between man and woman culminated by the woman surrendering a woven cloth as a sign of acceptance of the marriage proposal. To conclude their performance, the ‘Dinnuya’ and ‘Turayan’ dance or known as eagle dance were performed which involved the audience to participate in the dance.

As another country with a fan trademark, Vietnam performed an interpretative dance with the traditional song, Lac Hong Blood in honor of Vietnam’s ancestor Lac Hong. It is also an interpretative dance with a fusion of artistic choreography of fans. It is a combination of martial arts technique and graceful dance to symbolize summer season is in the air. The song also describes about the origin of the Vietnamese people that they descended from a dragon and a fairy.

 Vietnam

 Cambodia

Meanwhile, Cambodia performed a folk dance which comprises of five dance routines known as: Ram Leave, Saravan, Talong, Chok Korm Peouss, and Madisorn. The dance is a popular dance in Cambodia due to its flexible and easy steps. This dance is generally performed for fun and for relieving stress after work. It is also performed during weddings and special occasions such as birthday party and New Year celebration.

 Pakistan

 Mongolia

 Turkey

Another performance is from Pakistan which includes various folk dances (Pashto, Balochi, and Sufi). The vibrant Mongolian students presented the modern dance version of “Bayad” which requires skill and vigor because it is danced on half-bent legs with the lower part of the body staying motionless. Turkish managed some quizzes for festival audiences. They provided several snacks to be given for audiences who answered the correct answer. The Bangladeshi team presented Bangladeshi song, fashion show and inside the tent information of Bangladesh and some food. To close the performance, fashion shows took place to demonstrate traditional costumes which came from the various countries.

 Bangladesh

 Uzbekistan

As 2013 INHA Harmony Festival theme, all participants and visitors enjoyed the activities. The cultures and traditions define us as a global community. We can always experience the cultural diversity through this kind of festival thus, this festival is a good platform for cultural exchange. It is a festival meant for us to mingle with other people from different parts of the world and from different races. The festival was truly a success. Kudos to all the participants and organizers!

Alumni Talk

Roksana Jahan (Bangladesh) Ph.D in Marine Science and Biological Engineering

I'd conducted a research at Inha University since 2007 and successfully graduated in February 2013. Currently, I continue my research work by joining Plankton Lab as post-doctoral research fellow. During this long journey, Inha University taught me how to see the world in a different way; to recognize the opportunities in obstacles, the unexplored potential in all individuals, and the value of true personal relationships. I believe, I gained my research experience because Inha University has excellent research facilities, graduate course curriculum, scholarship, and library facilities. Studying at Inha University was totally a new life experience as I had an opportunity not only to interact with different international students but also at the same time learn the culture of different regions of the world at one place. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all of my Bangladeshi, Korean and other foreign friends who supported me a lot.

Nandinbold Nyamaa is one of the successful graduates from the Mongolian community at Inha University. He completed his master's degree in computer and network security field in 2009. Currently, he is working as a software engineer at Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd. He mentioned Inha University proudly and shared some of his thoughts. Nandinbold quotes: "Besides providing decent learning facilities and great opportunity to interact with multicultural student societies, Inha University has a wide range of faculties and faculty members, which are important key factors for MS or Ph.D degree candidates to consider when choosing the graduate school. Finding a person with whom you can work well is more important in my opinion, than finding a person with a similar project to what you were working on during your undergraduate program. To this extend, I feel very lucky that I had a chance to work with Dr. Nyang for two years at the Graduate School of Information Technology and Telecommunication. Dr. Nyang has been an in-depth research advisor and a role model to students like me".

Alumni Event in Vietnam

A group of four delegates from Inha University visited several esteemed universities in Vietnam during the first week of June 2013 to promote collaboration. During these university visitings, Graduate School of Inha University organized "Alumni Dinner in Vietnam". The first dinner was held in Hanoi, the capital of Vietnam on the 4th of June while the second event was coordinated at Ho Chi Minh City on the 5th of June. It was such a meaningful event to make Inha alumni come together.

According to Graduate School's data, there are 51 Vietnamese alumni as of February 2013. Approximately, 65% of them are employed in Vietnam recently. There is one interesting point that more than 50 Korean alumni of Inha University Graduate School have been working in Vietnam recently.

The delegation group of Inha University consisted of Dr. Kim Youngsoon, Vice Dean of Graduate School, Dr. Choi Seungbok, Head of Mechanical Engineering, Dr. Kim Hakil, Professor in Information and Communication Engineering, and Ms. Kim Jihee, who is responsible for Admission and International Affairs at Graduate School.

The first dinner was organized at "Quán Ăn Ngon", a Vietnamese restaurant which offered tasty traditional Vietnamese food. Ten(10) alumni participated in the event. Four(4) were Koreans and the rest were Vietnamese. Korean alumni(Kim Taesik, Jeong Jinwoong, Ko Junwon and Park Soho) continue their successful careers in Vietnam. The first Vietnamese student of Inha University Graduate School, Nguyen Minh Chung currently teaches Korean language to Vietnamese students as a lecturer at University of Humanities and Social Sciences, Vietnam National University, Hanoi. Le Duc Chien, Cao Thi Ngoc Ha and Luu Thi Thuy Giang have worked at a company since graduation, while Nguyen Thi Hai Binh is a lecturer and Nguyen Kim Dung is a public officer at Hanoi.

The dinner at Ho Chi Minh City on the 5th of June was held at Đông Phố restaurant. Eighteen(18) alumni gathered for the mini reunion event. There were six(6) Koreans, Wang Moonchan, Baik Sooyoung, Sohn Chanyoung, Namkung Chulwoong, Chung Jinsoo and Ahn Jinchul who run their own business successfully in Vietnam and twelve(12) Vietnamese alumni namely, Nguyen Quoc Hung, Nguyen Thi Minh Duc, Nguyen Hoang Dung, Nguyen Duc Huy, Tran Hieu Thuan, Duong Thi Phung Cac, Nguyen Phuong Bac and Nguyen Vien Quoc, Do Dai Thang, Le Thi Hong Na, Ly Kinh Hien and Nguyen Thi Thom. Nguyen Quoc Hung is the first Vietnamese student who achieved a Ph.D degree from Inha University. He is currently working as Dean of Mechanical Engineering at Industrial University of Ho Chi Minh City with two lecturers, Phuong Bac Nguyen and Nguyen Vien Quoc. Do Dai Thang, Le Thi Hong Na, Ly Kinh Hien work in other universities in Vietnam. Nguyen Thi Thom works at Korean company "Hyosung".

These events lead to the gathering of Inha Alumni in Vietnam. They met each other, shared contact information. Everyone talked about their life stories and unforgettable moments at Inha University. They also made a pact to each other that Korean and Vietnamese alumni will organize regular alumni meetings at least more than twice a year. They can build stronger relationships between themselves. In lieu with this, they will also promote Inha University to excellent Vietnamese students and help new coming students as mentors.

INHA Student Ambassadors (Spring 2013)

Inha Student Ambassadors are generally fulfilling a role in supporting or coordinating international graduate students. We provide an advise to the new students by giving them a first-hand experience of what university life in Korea is all about. We believe that this kind of interaction can have a significant impact for them in decision making and confidence living at new place and new atmosphere towards encouraging them to achieve their potential as new scholars at Inha University.

"The joy is in the journey."

Editor's Desk

As the world becomes a more global village, where borders are being removed day by day, more than half a century old Inha University increases the number of the international students. Therefore, we, as being Inhaians from all around the world, tried to prepare a publication which would help to connect the present international students and alumni to the future students. Also, it will be a useful and informative tool about daily life.

For these purposes, we contacted with several alumni, and highlighted cultural events organized by Graduate School of Inha University. Besides, we tried to clear up coming students' minds about eating, housing and social activities around campus. Over and above, some international students introduced their laboratories and gave hints about graduate students' life.

We are glad to reach you through this second issue of "INHA GLOBAL MESSENGER". We hope that you will read it with enthusiasm.
