Bangladesh Community Story

There has been a massive increase in the number of foreign students in Inha university, due to its high quality of education and nice academic atmosphere. So far, Inha University has been a great destination for many Bangladeshi students to pursue their dream goal of higher studies. Currently, there are 13 students studying undergraduate, Masters and Ph.D. at this university. Moreover, there are also 4 Post-Doc/Research Professors working in the different laboratory/department. There are also 4 KGSP recipients from Bangladesh to study Korean language only for a year at this university.

We made a small Bangladesh at the heart of Inha. We take care of each other as a friend & family. It is true that here everyone is so busy to fulfill one's goal, however, there is no rule for the party!! On the weekends, we get-together at a friend's house, play cards, gossips over a cup of tea. When we sit together, it seems that time flies like a glimpse of an eye. Sometimes we arrange a BBQ party, outdoor parties to relieve from this monotonous life and it refreshes our both body and mind. BD-Inhaians is one of the most strong & vibrant communities at Inha University.

Although we are far from Bangladesh, we celebrate our festivals

On Eid day, we wear our traditional dresses and embrace with each other. On this special Eid day, BD-Inha families prepare delicious native food like polaw(scented rice)-Biriyani,curry, sweets and we never miss these gatherings especially, bachelors. Our joy knew no bounds when Eid is observed on weekends. We also celebrate Durga Puja with joy and happiness within our community. Sometimes,

We actively participate in different cultural festivals, like Inha Harmony Festival, Food festivals, etc.. Inha Harmony Festival is a great opportunity to introduce our Bangladeshi culture, tradition, history and natural beauty to local and international students in the university. In this festival, we perform fashion show & drama, sing songs, and prepare an exhibition. We also build friendship with other local & foreign students by playing games & sports. Last year, one of our Bangladeshi students got champion in single Badminton

We become so excited when our students get their desired degrees by dint of hard work. We arrange a graduation ceremony party in honor of their achievements. Apart from this, there is one particular news that gives us the utmost pleasure, that is the birth of a child. Because we believe, family.. Where life begins and love never ends. And so, we share our love belongs to the School of Medicine of Inha University and is located at a new building called 60th Anniversary Building. Led directly by Professor Jun-Hyeog Jang, the department of Biochemistry aimed to construct therapeutic growth fusion protein for the sustained release of growth factors in the body, which is highly applied for tissue

Department of BIOCHEMISTRY

Currently, there are a PhD student and 4 Master students who are enthusiastically guided by the professor Jang. He is an expert in protein engineering especially on growth factors and extracellular matrix (ECM) molecules such as fibroblast growth factors (FGFs), fibronectin (FN) and osteocalcin, respectively. Therefore, our laboratory is at the very core of our research interests to investigate efficient of growth factors and extracellular matrix (ECM) molecules on cellular proliferation, cellular differentiation, wound repair as well as evaluate the collagen based sustained release of recombinant growth factors.

The department of Biochemistry is one of the most modern and advanced laboratories of the School of Medicine, which has been extremely well-equipped with the latest equipment and machines in order to assure studies go smoothly and get the best results. Hitherto, to publish high-quality journal for research articles along with the opportunity to participate in domestic and international conferences. Our department is coupled with many talented faculties of other universities that expertise in stem cells and biomaterials. We quises with, for instance, Institute of Tissue

Regeneration Engineering (ITREN) of Dankook University, Department of Otorhinolaryngology of The Catholic University of Korea, and Department of Biomedical Chemistry of Konkuk University. We also have a collaboration with the Faculty of Pharmacy which belongs to the University of Sydney

Heretofore, as the only one foreigner in the lab, I received plenty of help from seniors to get familiar with the lab duties. Here in laboratory we are all like brothers, we help each other's as well as always give advice for the new students. Every week after we finish the meeting, we meet all together for a lunch in which we

Our professor shared his expectation on his students.

“ What I expect from all of you is not only to fall in research with full of enthusiasm to achieve success as many as possible but also to become credible and honest people who has a positive attitude to contribute to a development of society. Try incessantly perfecting yourself.”

Out of working hours, the professor always makes sure to organize parties and some trips during the year in order to enhance our relations together. Those give me a great opportunity to understand more about Korean daily life and enjoy lots of delicious traditional Korean

During Khmer traditional ceremony, we are always wear khmer traditional cloths and take food to monks and pray for Buddha in Pagoda in order to wish what we want to have in the future and pray for gods to transfers food to our ances-

Climate

Cambodia is located in Southeast Asia in the tropical zone, just 10-13 degrees north off the equator. Like most of Southeast Asia, Cambodia is warm to hot year round and the climate is dominated by the annual monsoon cycle with its alternating wet and dry seasons. The monsoon cycle is driven by cyclic air pressure changes over central Asia. As the pressure drops during the summer months (June through October), moist air is drawn landward from the ocean bringing the southwest monsoon rains to Cambodia and much of Southeast Asia. Come the winter months (November through May), the air pressure over central Asia rises, driving cool dry air back across Southeast Asia and bringing on a largely rainless dry Angkor Wat: is the most magnificent and largest of all Angkor temples and the top tourist attraction in Cambodia. It was built around the first half of 12th century by King Suryavarman II, the temple's balance, composition and beauty make it one of the finest monuments in the world. A huge rectangular reservoir surrounds Angkor Wat which rises up through a series of three rectangular terraces to the central shrine and tower at a height of 213 meters (669 feet). This arrangement reflects the traditional Khmer idea of the temple mountain, in which the temple represent Mount Meru, the home of the gods in Hinduism.

When we visit there, we can see the ultimate expression of Khmer genius with beautiful Apsara Statue on the wall with its fascinating decorative flourishes of Angkor Wat. However, in order to really experience the complex, take your family or friends early in the morning to experience the sunrise over the Yeak Laom Lake: It is the deepest lake in Cambodia, it is popular tourist destination in the Ratanakiri province of northeastern Cambodia. It's Length: 750 m and Width: 750 m. this beautiful lake occupies a 4,000-year-old volcanic crater. Due to the lake's tremendous depth (157 ft or 48 m), its water is exceptionally clean, clear and very cold, The lake is almost perfectly round and measures 0.45 mi (0.72 km) in diameter. When you go there, you will see large trees and rich, lush rain forest, the home of many

Koh Rong: The most famous island in Cambodia is Koh Rong which is located in Sihanouk Vill province. Koh Rong Island is just 78 km square and the only population on the island is fishermen village. It is a good place to relax around beaches and jungle! So you can sure do some snorkeling or trekking into the jungle. You can reach the island by boat from the mainland in 40 – 120 minutes. So the life here is wild given by jungle, mangroves, Silver Pagoda: Located within the Royal Palace compound in Phnom Penh, the Silver Pagoda houses many national treasures such as gold and jeweled Buddha statues. Most notable is a small 17th century baccarat crystal Buddha (the Emerald Buddha of Cambodia) and a life-sized gold Maitreya Buddha decorated with 9584 diamonds. The internal wall of the Silver Pagoda courtyard is decorated with a richly colored and detailed mural of the Ramayana myth, painted in 1903–04 by 40 Khmer artists.

Tonle Sap: Tonle Sap is the largest freshwater lake in South East Asia and is of major importance to Cambodia. The lake expands and shrinks dramatically with the seasons. From November to May, Cambodia's dry season, the Tonle Sap drains into the Mekong River at Phnom Penh. However, when the year's heavy rains begin in June, the flow of the Tonle Sap changes directions and an enormous lake forms. Tonle Sap is home to many ethnic group and numerous Cham communities, living in floating villages around the

Thailand

Hello, all lovely readers! I wonder if you guys are excited to see this issue's discover country? Of course! It is going to be extremely appealing because this issue we are proudly presenting Thailand country! Thailand is widely known as a country for tropical beaches, opulent royal palaces, ancient ruins and ornate temples displaying figures of Buddha, a revered symbol. Thailand is on Southeast Asia's Indochina peninsula.

The first city in Thailand we firstly would like to talk about is Bangkok, Thailand's capital. Bangkok is a sprawling metropolis known for its ornate shrines and vibrant street life. The boat-filled Chao Phraya River feeds its network of canals, flowing past the Rattanakosin royal district, home to the opulent Grand Palace and its sacred Emerald Buddha temple. The famous temple recommended to visit are Wat Phra Kaew,

Next and still close to Bangkok, a city named Hua Hin, is a seaside resort on the Gulf of Thailand. Hua Hin is my favourite place which is not far to my home as well. It also used to be a quiet fishing village but grew into a fashionable escape for residents of Bangkok after the 1920s, when the Thai royal family built summer palaces here. Hua Hin Beach, popular for kitesurfing and other water sports, is the main stretch of sand, lined with high Near Bangkok, there is another beautiful city named Pattaya. It is a town on Thailand's eastern Gulf coast known for a wild nightlife scene that attracts international visitors, weekenders from Bangkok and expats. Pattaya used to be a quiet fishing village as recently as the 1960s, however, it is now lined with resort hotels, high-rise condos and a large seaside mall. Jet-skiing and parasailing are popular activities at Pattaya's busy beaches.

More for those who love beaches, we are still on to bring you to another wonderful beach in southern part of Thailand! Ko Samui, one of Thailand's largest islands in the Gulf of Thailand, is known for its palm-fringed beaches circled by coconut groves and dense,

A lot of luxury resorts, posh spas and a rowdy nightlife scene that often attracts a backpacker crowd. The 12m-tall golden Big Buddha statue at Wat Phra Yai temple is a local landmark. Go further more to the south, we will discover Phuket, a city in southeast Phuket Island, Thailand. It is the capital of Phuket Province. Phuket island itself has many high-end seaside resorts, spas and restaurants. From Phuket island, we can travel to the most recommended island called "Phi Phi Islands". The islands are administrative part of Krabi province. It takes just a 45-minute speedboat jaunt and a

Last but not least, Let us take you to the northern part of Thailand! There is one must-visit city, Chiang Mai, a city in mountainous northern Thailand that dates back to the 1200s. Its Old City area still retains vestiges of walls and moats from its history as a cultural and religious center. It's also home to hundreds of elaborate temples, including 14th-century Wat Phra Singh and 15th-century Wat Chedi Luang, adorned with carved serpents.

Indispensably, we lead you guys to discover Thai foods! Here are only some examples of delicious Thai dishes. Please precisely remember the names of them, so you can make sure you enjoy eating them in Thai restaurants~!

First dish! Super famous! The quintessential Thai aroma! Tom Yum Goong (Spicy Shrimp Soup) A bold, refreshing blend of fragrant lemongrass, chilli, galangal, lime leaves, shallots, lime juice and fish sauce shapes this classic soup, giving it its legendary herbal kick. Do you love prawns? Mushrooms? Succulent fresh prawns and straw mushrooms are mixed up in this soup. A versatile dish that can fit within virtually any meal, the distinctive smell reminds you of exotic perfume, while it's invigorating sour-spicy-hot taste just screams 'Thailand'!

Next! Som Tum or known as Spicy Green Papaya Salad! It is a hailing from the Northeast state of Isaan, this outlandish dish is both great divider - some can't get enough of its bite, some can't handle it! Garlic, chilies, green beans, cherry tomatoes and shredded raw papaya get dramatically pulverized in a pestle and mortar, so releasing a rounded sweet-sour-spicy flavour that's not easily forgotten. Regional variations throw peanuts, dry shrimp or salted crab into the mix, the latter having a gut-cleansing talent that catches many newcomers by surprise.

Tom Kha Kai (Chicken in Coconut Soup) A mild, tamer twist on Tom Yum, this iconic soup infuses fiery chilies, thinly sliced young galangal, crushed shallots, stalks of lemongrass and tender strips of chicken. However unlike its more watery cousin, lashings of coconut milk soften its spicy blow. Topped off with fresh lime leaves, it's a sweet-smelling concoction, both creamy and compelling. You will love it~!

Gaeng Daeng (Red Curry) Made with morsels of meat, red curry paste, smooth coconut milk and topped off with a sprinkling of finely sliced kaffir lime leaves, this rich, aromatic curry always gets those taste buds tingling. At its best when the meat is stunningly tender, it could be likened to a beautiful woman: it's mild, sweet and delicately fragrant. And like all true love affairs, absence makes the heart grow fonder.

Pad Thai (Thai style Fried Noodles) I am sure that most of you have tried this before! From Cape Town to Khao San Road, the default international Thai dish! Dropped in a searing hot wok, fistfuls of small, thin or wide noodles (you choose) do a steamy minute-long dance alongside crunchy beansprouts, onion and egg, before disembarking for the nearest plate. A truly interactive eating experience, half its fun (and flavour) lies in then using a quartet of accompanying condiments - fish sauce, sugar, chilli powder and finely ground peanuts - to wake it from its slumbers.

Yam Nua (Spicy Beef Salad) If there was such a thing as a 'Salad Hall of Fame', Thailand's zesty own breed, or 'yam' as they are known here, would surely take pride of place. Unconvinced? Experience the fresh, fiery thrill of yam nua - with its sprightly mix of onion, coriander, spearmint, lime, dried chili and tender strips of beef - and you won't be. It perfectly embodies the invigorating in-the-mouth-thrill of all

Ambassador Talk

Inha University is an experience of a lifetime and is one of the highlights in creating my future. I was also given a great opportunity to be the student ambassador representing Myanmar at Inha. Although there is ample opportunity to meet fellow classmates from around the world in other endeavors, the ambassador program really gave me a great chance to develop close friendships with students from many countries. Our different cultures and beliefs always made for great conversation and helped all of us learn about a number of things that otherwise I would not. It is a pleasure meeting and working with these intelligent people. Perhaps the most important thing about the ambassador program is the sense of community that we help create for all the students on campus. I like to think that the lives of everyone and the university is a bit brighter because of it. Truly, this experience has been invaluable, and it is something that I will always cherish. It would be my pleasure to meet and work with all of my fellow ambassadors in the future, and I can't wait to see the next line

Interest : travelling

1. K Zin, what do you actually do as a student Ambassador?

K Zin: As an Ambassador, providing the required information about the University for new international students is the main job. But, there are other things as well, one of which is, introducing about the University around our Myanmar organization and associations in order to garner the attention of Myanmar students in regards to scholarship opportunities. Of course, the exuberant lifestyle we enjoy at

2. Do you have activities which may be interesting for international students?

K Zin: Inha's yearly International Students' festival, sports day events, experiencing the different culture through traditional costumes & cooking festivals and annual excursion trips are must-do activities for the ones who want to enjoy various cultures.

3. What are the things that you enjoyed from being an ambassador?

K Zin: One of the things I most enjoyed about being an ambassador was the involvement in a variety of activities and meet ups that I might not have otherwise done. Having a responsibility to help others experience new cultures and events really made me

4. What is next for you after being a student ambassador for Inha University?

K Zin: Being an Ambassador for one year has helped me grow enormously in terms of cultural awareness and appreciation. Currently, I have applied for my doctoral program in the United States for the 2016 Fall semester. The idea of pursuing a doctoral degree has emerged mainly due to by my professor's enthusiastic desire as well as from other Ambassadors who are pursuing their Ph.D. at the moment. By discussing, about our future with them, it has given me an opportunity to think about my future and choose which suits me the best. Of course, no one knows their future and I might end up doing a Ph.D. in Germany or working in another country. Wherever I will be, the experience I was working as an Ambassador at Inha University will definitely be a stepping stone for the future.

2 years of unforgettable memory

Since the first day of becoming Inhaian, the only thing I would definitely can say is that I will never forget life of being Inhaian. There are several happy and delightful moments here.

As we know, Inha University is an university located in Incheon city but the transportation to Seoul or to other famous places of South Korea is comfortable. The first day I arrived, I checked-in at Inha first dormitory and easily walked to Main building of Inha University and then I took a bus to Sinsegye department store which took only about 20 minutes to arrive. Also, there are various food restaurants and desserts at the back gate area. To find things to eat and enjoy meeting friends there were simple. During semesters, I lived close to campus, therefore, my life was comfy because Inha campus and residences are close to each other by walking distance, I could just walk to classes, have a meal and walk back to my room or go to Jung-seok Memorial Library for study. I would say that most important wish of all foreign students like us expect to see, we can find them

Short Interview:

What is the main reason you choose Inha?

Ing: Admission and application system was not so complicated and professors were kind and very helpful.

Phon: Inha provides me the course I wish to pursue. Plus, the staffs are really kind to provide me informations about University.

Any difficulties while you are in South Korea?

Ing: At first, communication was a little issue (not big) but after a month passed, I learnt more Korean language and had more

For 2 years of my student life in Inha, I have to admit that I enjoy every single moment . I made a lot of new friends both Koreans and foreigners. My professors are really helpful and support me when I struggled with my courses. In the meantime, my classmates also encourage me to get through the obstacles. During my degree, I also attended various activities which were organized by University such as workshops, field trips and cultural exchange programs. Student life is tough but it also depends on how we manage it. What I always do when I have a rough moment is to think positive. Phon: First time could be language barrier but we can improve it

Did you learn Korean language before coming to Korea?

Ing: I did learn basic conversation of Korean language by myself before coming to Korea.

Phon: I prepared for one year course as a KGSP student

Suggestions to new Inhaians?

Ing: Please learn some basic Korean before coming and never stop learning Korean more when you live here. I am sure, you will feel "life is amazing in Korea".

Alumna's Profile

Name Solongo Zorigt
Nationality Mongolian
Major Environmental Engineering
 Air pollution control

Her name is Solongo Zorigt. She got awarded Ilwoo Foundation Scholarship and studied at Inha University Graduate School from 2011 till 2013 majoring in environmental engineering. She is now back in Mongolia working in an environmental NGO called “Rivers Without Boundaries” which is a part of an international organization “Rivers Without Boundaries Coalition.” This organization aims at protecting and conserving transboundary river basin ecosystems in Northeast Asia, mainly between Mongolia-Russia and Mongolia-China.

- Solongo, we are very honored to have an interview with you! Please tell us how your life in Inha University was?

My life in Inha University was completely a new experience for me. Everything was new to me; dormitory life, laboratory life, campus life, and Korean lifestyle! As a graduate student in environmental engineering, I conducted my study in Air Pollution Control laboratory. My professor and my lab seniors welcomed me warm-heartedly, and their advice in both academic and everyday life was invaluable for me to complete my study while enjoying life in Korea.

- How did your experience at Inha University influence your life and future career?

From my experience in Inha University, I have improved my independent and initiative mindset. This, in a sense, helped me to pursue whatever feels right to me at present situation. Also, perseverance was the most important thing I've learned from my fellow students. For example, the most surprising thing I saw during my study was students getting in line to book for the library seat extremely early in the morning. That showed me how important it is to try your best to grab an opportunity if you know there exists any.

- What is your vision in your working field?

My goal in my working field is to contribute in sustainably conserving nature of Mongolia. Mongolia is a country with high potential for development. However, this “traditional” development trend should be practiced with special care and high alternative consideration in order to conserve wild nature and cultural uniqueness of Mongolia. Therefore, I am aiming to contribute in leading the development into more sustainable and environmental friendly direction.

- Do you have any advice for students at Inha University Graduate School as an alumna?

I would say, blend into fellow local students' life, and never ever hesitate to discuss with your professors if you have any concerns or issues. Understand and respect the uniqueness of Korean culture. It would add taste to your life in Korea!
